Phoenix Rising Dominions

Game Summary:

Phoenix Rising wins their third game in their last four and are heating up making a move up the standings into second place, in a rout. Don't look now but they are looking more and more like the team (last season) that scores a lot of goals with a balanced two line attack. Dominions plays shorthanded, missing a lot of weapons on offense and defense, and it shows as they fall behind early by three goals in this game and never recover in getting blown out, as they lose their second straight game.

Mike O'Neill is on fire. After going the first four games recording only a lowly assist, and hearing from the critics about "coming for records," Mike has stepped up his game to show all his doubters that he does have game, by scoring a hat trick and adding 2-assists, to lead his team's offense. Mike has now scored 5-goals in his last two games.

John Kelleher shows why some 60+ veteran players still matter in the outcome of a game, as he is the playmaker for his team, scoring the game's first goal, then setting up three other goals in the middle of this game.

Jose Silva also is heating up with his second straight 2-goals and 1-assist game, to give his team strong balanced scoring.

Matty Iannello returns from a two week hiatus, and joins the scoring frenzy with his first goal of the season at the end of the first period that ignites four straight unanswered goals scored by his team.

Rick Cassano leads the way for his team on offense scoring 1-goal while adding 2-assists.

Sean Roach you had a remarkable consistent stretch run in net since the start of last season, chalk this performance simply to a bad day at the office. Everyone has them.
